

About

Welcome to louisburgsportszone.com! This website is designed to bring you the most up-to-date information regarding Louisburg sports, whether it is on the high school, middle school or youth levels.

My name is Andy Brown and I am the owner and operator of this site and have the upmost experience covering sports in Louisburg. I have spent the last 19 years covering mainly high school sports for three different newspapers, including the last 13 in Louisburg. When the opportunity was no longer there for me to cover athletics in Louisburg, I decided to create my vision of how sports in this town should be covered – thoroughly and with passion.

The mission is for you to find everything you need regarding Louisburg sports. From the high school level all the way down to the Louisburg Area Recreation Association, I hope to provide you with great coverage.

I also will be selling photos from all the athletic events that I shoot and those can be found on a sister site, louisburgsportszone.smugmug.com.

For the last 14 years, I have called Louisburg my home, along with my wife Jennifer and our three kids Jordan, Ally and Carter. It has been a great place to raise a family and Jennifer and I enjoy sending our kids to school here.

My goal is to provide you with the best area sports coverage possible, and I believe I have the qualifications to do it. I have won numerous awards over my 14 years, including several first-place honors from the Kansas Press Association and Kansas City Press Club, the Kansas State High School Activities Association Oscar Stauffer Sportswriter of the Year, and Media of the Year from the Kansas Wrestling Coaches Association.
